Company, and had been used by them in their woods operations until about 30 years ago. Officials of the Lumberman's Museum plan to restore the log hauler as near as possible to its original condition. (Pioneer Times Photo)

Acquisition Of Log Hauler Concludes Year-Long Search

The Lumberman's Museum, a primary tourist attraction in Patten, is the proud possessor of a new, and its largest, relic of the old logging days. A Lombard steam log hauler was officially placed in the Museum last Thursday.

Frank Peltier, general manager of the Katahdin Corp. in Patten, a member of the Town Council in Houlton, and president of the Board of Directors of the Lumberman's Museum, was present with other members of the Museum staff and townspeople to see the big log hauler pushed into the new 60 x 60 foot open shed that had been constructed to hold heavy equipment.

Steam Locomotive
Established in 1961, the Lumberman's Museum on the Shin Pond Road has an extensive collection of equipment used in the logging operations, but nothing as impressive as the log hauler. The hauler is actually a steam locomotive, that needed an engineer and a fireman, and would haul a dozen or more loads of logs through the woods to the mills in Patten and Sherman as a trackless train.

This particular log hauler is a gift to the Museum from the Sherman Lumber Company, and represents what is undoubtedly the largest single project ever undertaken by the Museum. Dr. Lore A. Rogers, who with Caleb Scribner serve as curators for the Museum, graphically describes how the log hauler was used in its day more than 30 years ago, and of the vast search that led to its placement in the Museum.

Dr. Rogers prepared the following article:
When the Lumberman's Museum built a large tool shed, special provision was made for a steam log hauler. The Lombard log hauler was not only a valuable addition to the equipment for handling lumber, but its advent marked the beginning of a new era in lumbering.

Oxen In Early Days
In the early days the pine logs were hauled by oxen to water on which they could be floated to the mills. When the pine within easy distance of streams was exhausted and the lumbermen turned to spruce, horses were used and the distance logs could be hauled was increased. However, the distance that logs could be profitably hauled was still quite definitely limited. A logging road must be down grade, or at least logs could not be hauled by horses up hill.

By the end of the century it was becoming increasingly difficult to find lumber that could be profitably hauled with horses, and when Mr. Lombard, after one or two false starts, appeared with his steam monster that would haul a train of 12 to 14 loads of logs up hill and down for long distances, he was received with enthusiasm.

For a short period lumber was hauled very generally by log haulers, much of it going directly to the mill, thus eliminating the expensive river drive. But the caterpillar tread which made the log hauler possible also made the bulldozer a practical machine, and when it became possible to make a passable road through the woods anywhere at comparatively small cost, the truck with its greater flexibility, lower cost and higher speed soon took over the jobs of hauling the lumber, and the log hauler became obsolete. Thrifty Habit

The Sherman Lumber Co., which has the thrifty habit of saving its obsolete equipment, had among the large collection of sleds, wagons, tractors and water carts one Lombard steam log hauler which had escaped the junk yard. The president of the company, Lawrence Robinson, who is a member of the board of the Museum, offered this to the museum if and when it could be restored to its original condition.

In the 30 years in which this log hauler was slowly sinking into the soft ground of the mill yard, it was a convenient source of old metal for all sorts of purposes. The lags of the caterpillar, treads weighing about 50 pounds were especially useful for counter weights on various machines about the mill. When a 1000 pound counter weight was needed for a machine they were building, a box filled with lags covered with cement filled the bill neatly.

Track Got Lost

The older men remembered that the machine had been sold but none could remember where it had gone. When the company cleared some farms in the woods near the mill, one entire track was removed and dragged over

School Lunch Personnel Learn To Feed By The Hundreds

For seven weeks this summer nearly two dozen women have been learning the fine art of preparing meals for a school lunch program. While all of the women are fine cooks in their own right, preparing menus that are based on 100 servings is entirely different than preparing meals for a small family.

In New Cafeteria
The special school lunch course has been conducted in the new cafeteria of the junior-senior high school in Houlton, and while it was primarily designed for SAD 29 school lunch personnel, it has been attended by women who will be working in Island Falls, Crystal and at Ricker.

Financed by the Federal government under the Area Redevelopment Act and administered by the State Department of Education, the school lunch course came under the Manpower Training and Development Program and served a two-fold purpose. It provided employment for women who would otherwise be unemployed during the summer, and it helped these women to upgrade their skills in the school lunch program.

Solved Problems
But perhaps of even greater importance, it provided SAD 29 with an opportunity to train

MMH Auxiliary Plans Cake, Ice Cream Sale

Mrs. James McPartland, general chairman, has announced her committees as follows: tickets, Mrs. Stanley McElwee and Mrs. James Madigan; cake servers, Mrs. William Callinan, Mrs. Dean McCarthy and Mrs. Joseph West; ice cream servers, Mrs. Richard Niles, Mrs. Joseph Skehan, Mrs. Robert Goodwin, Mrs. Ray Brown and Mrs. Arnold Ellis; soft drinks, Miss Mary Skehan, Miss Wendy Beaulieu and Miss Margaret McPartland.

a school lunch program staff, and to iron the kinks out of a brand new kitchen and cafeteria. The problems solved during the seven-week period will make the school lunch program at the junior-senior high school operate just that much more smoothly this coming school year.

Miss Ethel Cairns, director of the school lunch program in Enfield, Conn., has been director of the special course, and working with her has been Frank Nash, who recently retired after being an instructor in quantity food service for the U.S. Navy. Mr. Nash will direct the school lunch program at Houlton this coming year.

Walter Robb, a member of the high school faculty, has been the coordinator.

The course was begun with a general orientation period, and then the women were divided into three groups for specialized training. Some were taught how to be managers of school lunch programs, others how to be cooks, and others how to do the baking.

The women were taught how to use the big equipment that is needed for quantity food preparation, how to efficiently serve as many as 300 to 400 students in a half-hour lunch period, and how to make the meals attractive.

Kitchen Sanitation
A special five-hour course was given by Lester W. Munsey of Presque Isle, State sanitarian, in kitchen sanitation. He presented awards to all the women who took this course, while Miss Gertrude Griney, director

Houlton Jr.-Sr. High Will Be All Ready For Pupils Tuesday

Houlton's new junior-senior high school will be ready, as will all other facilities in School Administrative District 29, when classes are opened for the 1965-66 school year on Tuesday. Expect 2,447 Students Superintendent Hamilton S. Giberson has predicted that 2,447 students will be enrolled in the SAD 29 schools, located in Houlton, Littleton and Monticello. Of these there will be just under 1,100 in the new junior-senior high school, with about half of this total in each three-year division.

Although workmen are still in the finishing stages at the new $1 million-plus building in Houlton, Mr. Giberson said that all of the new school should be ready by Tuesday, with the single exception of the auditorium.

Workmen are expected to begin putting in the auditorium seats Monday, and when they are installed the complete facility will be ready for use. The auditorium will seat just under 600 persons, making it large enough to accommodate all of the junior high students, or all of the senior high students.

New Parking Area
Mr. Giberson, who now has his offices at the junior-senior high school, said that all student parking at the school will be in the rear of the building. Incoming busses will approach through Community Park, and exit onto Pleasant street, while the student car entrance to the school will be from Pleasant street.

Schools will be in session only four weeks when they will be closed for a three-week period on September 17 for the annual potato harvest.

Formal dedication ceremonies for the new junior-senior high school will be conducted shortly after classes are resumed, after the harvest season, Mr. Giberson said.

Four Killed In Accident At Connor

A Canadian Army sergeant, his wife and two sons were killed Friday in a car-truck crash on Route 1 in Connor, about eight miles north of Caribou. It was the worst single accident in Aroostook County in more than 20 years and pushed the County's highway death toll for the year to 16.

State Police identified the victims as Sgt. Jack Arnold Martin, 32, of Kingston, Ont., his wife, Norma, 31, and their two young sons. All were in a car that was reportedly struck nearly broadside by a trailer truck on a straight stretch of road. Driver of the truck, according to Police, was Elwell R. Leonard, 39, of Hampden Highlands, who received hospital treatment for facial cuts and was released.

The accident was the third multiple fatality in Aroostook this year, and the second this month. A man and his wife were killed August 5 in a two-car crash at Caribou, and two men and a woman died February 26 as a result of a two-car crash at Reed.

Log Hauler

the fields by a tractor to smooth the rough ground. When the job was finished, the track was pushed into the woods and forgotten. By a careful search of the mill and some digging in the vicinity of the log hauler, 18 of the 60 logs required for the two tracks were collected.

Mr. Lombard built 83 steam log haulers, most of them going into the Maine woods. When their job was taken over by the trucks, some of these were cut up and sold as junk, but for the most part, they were abandoned in the woods wherever they hauled their last load, where they sank slowly into the ground and became overgrown with bushes.

It seemed that almost everyone knew where there was a log hauler or parts of one. There were five in a row at the Churchill depot at the foot of Churchill Lake. There were two in the Michaud field near Allagash Falls, one in a field on the shore of Musquacook, two near St. Francis, one at Indian Carry on Webster Brook and so on.

No Lack of Information There was no lack of information. It seemed that every other man who came to the museum knew where there was a log hauler or parts of a log hauler. Many of these leads were followed up by the volunteer log hauler-hunters. Some of them were fruitful, some of them were a dud and many were so inaccessible that they were of no value.

The five Lombards at the Churchill depot at the foot of Churchill Lake proved to be gasoline, not steam. The one at Indian Carry on Webster Brook proved to be the boiler of a donkey engine.

The report of a steam Lombard in a field on the shore of Musquacook sounded promising. One man had seen it 12 years ago, but a reliable guide reported that he had seen it within two years. Hopefully Clint Porter and Wes Giles flew to Musquacook. The field was there and various artifacts to indicate that a log hauler had been there one, but no log hauler now, nor was there any evidence that one had been removed in recent times.

Accurate Memory The most reliable information came from Lester Webster. It was many years ago that he had driven his tote team into the Allagash country, but his memory of the log haulers he had seen in there was clear and accurate. There was one that was abandoned when it capsized in a clearing on the old Telos road about two miles beyond Third

Water Co. Cops Title In American

The Houlton Water Company team, coached by Earl Shields, has won the championship of the American League in Houlton's Little League after the third try. The Water Company outscored the Elks, 11-5, Monday night after the two teams had twice played to ties in an attempt to settle league honors.

Both teams had finished their regular season with identical 14-2 records, losing only to each other. They played to the two ties before Monday night's game in an attempt to break the deadlock.

The Water Company will now meet the Odd Fellows of the National League for the championship of the town. The Odd Fellows are coached by Lyman Crabb, and won their league title with a 13-3 record.

As of Wednesday noon, the date for the play-off game had not been set. It must be played before the start of school next Tuesday.

Log Hauler

trips were made by the treasure hunters.

They were stimulated by the statement of Manley Brown that he knew exactly where the track was hidden. He had reason to remember because on some errand to the old field he had stumbled over some obstruction that tore his pants and barked his shin. Pushing aside the bushes he uncovered a log hauler track only a part of it above ground. It was a short distance up the brook, past the beaver dam and the foundation of the spool bar mill beside a pile of old junk. In spite of these explicit directions no track was found and the Kimball Brook area was abandoned.

Fields Are Searched

In the meantime, repeated searches were made of the margins of the field where the track was reputed to have been discarded. The older men in the mill remembered very definitely where it had been used and in a general way where it had been abandoned. But in 30 years stones and other debris had been pushed off the field and a dense growth had been pushed towards the field by the forest.

David Brooks and Rendle Jones, armed with an instrument for detecting water pipes, went over the area very carefully and became convinced that some itinerant junk collector had hauled away the track when none was looking.

On one of Maine Dairy ETV shows, Professor Stephen Hyatt of the University of Maine was shown locating cannon balls and other metal artifacts in the Revolutionary fort at Castine. When contacted he very obligingly volunteered to bring his instrument to Sherman, and if the metal was still there, to locate it. Unfortunately the day set for his visit coincided with one of the few real rain storms of the season, and before another date could be arranged, a supply of lags was obtained from another source.

Off To Russell Brook

There were reports of various log hauler parts at a camp ground on Russell Brook, a stream coming into Eagle Lake on the west side, and that pair of indefatigable scouts, Porter and Giles made a reconnaissance trip by plane. They found the campground without difficulty and scattered about was a great abundance of lags and other needed parts. There was a passable road to the head of the abandoned Eagle to Chamberlain tramway and railroad, and a path to the shore of the lake.

They estimated that since the lags weighed only 60 pounds each, a man could make the round trip to the lake with one lag in a half hour. With a crew of willing helpers, the 42 lags needed could be gotten to the lake in a day and flown to Matagamon where they could be picked up by truck.

At this stage Anthony Hunter came forward with an offer to make his way to Russell Brook with his bombardier, which could go anywhere and bring out the lags in one trip.

Accordingly the next weekend Wes Giles with four volunteers, John Hanson, Roland Wilkins, John Savage and Danny Baker, recruited for a weekend jaunt in the woods, were flown in to Eagle Lake to clear a road for the bombardier. There were no difficulties around the Arm of Chamberlain, past the old farm to the Lock Dam. Between the Lock Dam and the tramway, they encountered an extensive blowdown with everything flat and entirely impenetrable.

Guided By Plane

The next day the bombardier, guided by Clint Porter flying overhead, made its way slowly but surely, around the Arm of Chamberlain, past the old farm to the Lock Dam. From the Great Northern truck road the bombardier had no serious difficulty, but by the old farm to the lock dam it was slow going following the old roads even with Porter flying to indicate the road picked out by the advance crew.

Part of the shore of Chamberlain was used as a roadway with one track on dry ground and one in the water. From the head of the abandoned Tramway and railroad on Eagle Lake, there was at one time a passable road, but in the past year this was completely blocked by an extensive blowdown.

For the first section of this road the bombardier again took to the water, following the shore of Eagle past the blowdown. A long stretch of dense alder growth was almost as bad as the blowdown, but the bombardier pressed its way through and eventually reached the field on Russell Brook.

Treasure Is Loaded

Here Wes Giles and his crew, armed with pickers made short work of loading the half buried treasure on the bombardier. The 42 lags required to complete the two tracks were recovered with two extra and a blacksmith's horseshoe vice thrown in for good measure.

The return trip was made much easier by Allen Nugent, who met the bombardier at the lock dam with his boat and carried the load to the landing on Telos. From there a truck carried them to the Sherman Lumber Co. only one day behind schedule.

Thus the year long quest for the log hauler parts was ended.

Stevens-Simpson Nuptials Are Performed At Baptist Church

The Hodgdon Baptist Church was the setting Saturday evening for the marriage of Miss Barbara Jean Simpson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sterling Simpson of Hodgdon, and Otis Theodore Stevens, son of Mrs. Waldo Stevens of Linneus.

The Rev. John Ruth performed the double ring ceremony before an altar decorated with baskets of white and pink gladioli and seasonal flowers. Organist was Mrs. Ella Bell, who also accompanied Elizabeth and Janet Heath, who sang "Because" and "A Wedding Prayer."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a chapel train gown of nylon organza and chantilly lace. ## Minority Rule On The Highway

Bad drivers are a "vociferous, ruling minority" which is whittling away the rights of the great majority of good drivers, says G.A. Hatfield, driver license director of the Minnesota Highway Department.

His forthright article objecting to the overly-protected minority first appeared in the May issue of "Minnesota Motorist", but it is currently being quoted widely across the country. Several key paragraphs are included in the regional talks made at AAMVA conferences by Glenn V. Carmichael, executive director of the association.

Some excerpts: "Looking back over the many years of dealing with the driver and his problems, one thing above all becomes more and more obvious—the small number of bad drivers has representation; the vast majority of drivers, well behaved, does not. As a result, the rights of the majority are slowly being whittled away by the minority."

"A small vociferous group of drivers and others have combined to foist upon the public the impression that highway safety proposals are simply a sneaky way for some bureaucrat to secure more power and at the same time circumscribe the great freedoms of our driving public. At each proposal designed to increase every highway user's safety, we hear a great outcry about violation of rights."

"...when anyone proposes measures to keep non-law-abiding drivers off the road, all comments and sympathy are for the lawbreaker as we hear anguished cries about police states, rights, liberties, etc. . . ."

"Frankly, it is high time we put this matter of rights and liberties into proper perspective. Let us ask ourselves just whose rights and liberties are involved. Does the inconvenience to the small minority of law violators so outweigh the safety of the majority of drivers that their interest should be paramount? If that is what we have come to, we are indeed baying at the moon if we expect safer highway travel."

"...It's time to stop weeping for the law breakers and become concerned for those who do not violate. . . . No driver has a right to jeopardize your life on Saturday night and then be allowed to drive the rest of the time because he has a job to do, any more than an arsonist who fires buildings only on Tuesday nights can be allowed free the rest of the time."

Perils Of Pollen

Sunday marked the unofficial opening of the hay fever season, and with the lack of rain that has hit much of the northeastern part of the nation, this should be a season to remember.

The Allergy Foundation of America estimates that 20 million Americans, one tenth of the population, get hay fever or asthma, or both together, every year. The affliction is no joke to the sneezing, itching sufferers.

Scientists say it is the ragweed pollen, not goldenrod, that causes most of the hay fever and asthma from now until the first autumn frost. Until then the best way to avoid a hay fever attack is to be where the ragweed isn't.

Deadly Grandeur

The Maine wilderness we are fighting to preserve as a blessing has again proved a killer.

The sympathy of all go out to the parents of Robbie and Timmy Mott, whose bodies were found a few minutes walk from the headquarters of crews who had been searching for them for ten days.

The wilderness is no respecter of age or status for those who risk its perils. Only two years ago an experienced mountain climber, who became caught in a freak late October storm, slipped off an icy Katahdin cliff to her death and her body and that of a park ranger who went out to find her were not found until spring.

The wilderness does, however, respect training tempered with caution. Among the Maine visitors who followed the ordeal of the Mott family was Mrs. Donald C. Fendler of Rye, N.Y. She recalled the horrible nine days in July of 1939 when her son Don strayed from the family on a Katahdin climb. By the eighth day even the family had given up all hope, but word came to her the next day as she visited her husband hospitalized with an eye injury suffered during the hunt, that her son was alive and well. He had survived on water and berries and other survival practices he had learned as a boy scout.

A favorite pastime for tourists is photographing wild bear at Rockwood dump. Signs are prominently posted warning that these animals are dangerous and unpredictable. Still families swarm around them as if they were caged in a zoo.

As dangerous as they are, they are not nearly as deadly as the bush rimming the dump. A child wandering into it can become hopelessly lost in a matter of moments; so can an inexperienced adult after dark.

The Mott tragedy has commanded the headlines for days and it should be warning enough for this year's crop of visitors. But the tragedy accentuates the responsibility of all recreational and sporting organizations to teach survival and precaution to all who venture into the splendid but deadly wilderness.

Aerial Circus

When Day is about ready to slide over the horizon and shadows run long from fence posts and silos, chimney swifts stage their evening circus. The chimney swift is a true bird of the air; so far as scientists know it never rests on the ground.

It is good to sit on the screened farm porch and watch the aerial circus as the birds climb and dive, swoop and circle. One of its folklore names is Chimney Sweep, but it does not sweep chimneys. It sweeps the skylines.

Chaetura pelagica is not a bird of colors; its cloak is sooty black and it appears to have no tail. But with its long, curved wings and stubby rudder it mounts into the air and performs graceful acrobatic stunts.

For once, a native bird is well named, for scientists believe this is the swiftest of all our birds. It migrates back and forth from Brazil and it nests over a wide area of the nation. The nest is a rough platform of twigs, glued with the birds' sticky saliva to the inner walls of chimneys, caves, or hollow trees. The glossy white eggs look like large pearls when one peers down an old chimney.

The chimney swift may resemble a "flying cigar" but in the air it is a symbol of grace as it executes intricate patterns of zigzags, curves, dives and climbs. And somehow, on a hot August evening as the countryman hears the birds twittering as they settle for the night, the familiar monotone notes blend with the thickening darkness on the land.

Washington Highlights

A Letter From Viet Nam

In Washington the other day several hundred demonstrators sought to jam the Capitol to protest the United States involvement in Viet Nam.

Not that it would have made any difference but a few days earlier there appeared in the Congressional Record some letters a GI had written home from the fighting area in Viet Nam. These demonstrators might have discovered there are some Americans who see a reason for our being in that Godforsaken country, seeking to preserve freedom for a hapless people.

Excerpts From Letter

Here are some excerpts from those letters from Capt. James P. Spruill to his wife in Suffern, N.Y. They were written some months ago.

"It is a privilege to work with the Vietnamese. Frustrating at times because he is backward, poorly trained, and generally speaking—an amateur at almost everything he does. But in spite of his faults he is the most genuine and kind human I have met. Simple, humble, willing, and warm—they are wonderful people. If the press judges them harshly at times, it would be well to remember that they have had their independence only nine years, and they never have had the opportunity to develop leadership, civic and otherwise."

"The other day (during a hazardous field operation) when I thought I would drop, never to get up again, I said to myself: Barbara and the children are at that far-tree line. Without that thought I may not have made it. Later on in the day, I crossed a stream over my head. When you come to them, there is nothing to do but hold your breath and walk under the water and hope that you hold out until your head comes up again. And later on in the day, I fell into a spike trap. I was lucky because there were no spikes."

"My rotation date back to the states is Nov. 3, 1964. I am told that it could be as much as a month earlier but not to bank on that. In any event, honey, the clock is running; I am where my destiny has led me, and I have no regrets except my painful absence from you, Billy Goat, and Punky Bear."

"Last night, on Christmas eve, I went down town to a Catholic service. There were children everywhere, and there was a Santa Claus, slant eyes and all. I saw a small child that reminded me of another child I know, and it was all I could do to keep smiling. But you know, the mother read what was in my eyes and brought the child over to me. I picked it up, sat it in my lap and held it, and for a wonderfully warm moment East and West were one in heart."

"Had To Cry A Little"

"It was a wonderful Christmas, I want you to understand that. Before I fell asleep, I had to cry a little. But even as I did so, I knew I did not cry out of sorrow or self-pity. I cried because my heart was so full of happiness and gratitude that it could not hold it all. I was sublimely happy because I have had the three of you."

"At the moment, the war does not go well. You read enough about that. I feel that there is too much talk of despair, I warn you of that before I left. You may remember. Above all, this is a war of mind and spirit. And it is a war which can be won no matter what present circumstances are. For us to despair would be a great victory for the enemy."

Many Moments Of Frustration

"I must admit that there are many moments of frustration in Viet Nam. Ineptness, dishonesty, lack of spirit, confusion, and laziness—to name only a few. But that is exactly why we are here."

"Much sweat—and I am afraid much blood—remain to be shed. Progress will not be dramatic. It will be in fact be painfully slow. One of our biggest enemies will now be impatience and despair itself."

Another letter followed shortly in which Capt. Spruill offered his wife encouragement, "Chin up. See you later." But it was not to be. Capt. Spruill drove his jeep into a land mine and was killed.

Perhaps Mrs. Spruill would have more reason to protest our involvement in Viet Nam than any one of the hundreds who jammed the Capitol grounds. Instead, she sought to carry on the good work of her husband. In the weeks that followed her husband's death she contacted a number of pharmaceutical firms and arranged for free medical supplies to be sent to the village where Capt. Spruill was last stationed.

Last month she was awarded the George Washington Honor Medal by the Freedoms Foundation "in recognition of her husband's supreme sacrifice in Viet Nam and of his resolute and reverent support of the ideals of American patriotism as exemplified in his letters."

15, 25 and 40 Years Ago

15 Years Ago - 1950
Supt. of Schools George Cumming announced that classes for all grade and high school pupils will begin Wednesday, September 6.

With a cake, numerous cards from well-wishers, presents of a pipe and tobacco and a sprightliness belying his 11 decades, Jeremiah Campbellton, the old man of Aroostook, celebrated his 111th birthday at a party Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Preston McKen in Linneus.

In Aroostook County the potato crop made excellent growth during July. Rainfall has been adequate generally, and possibly excessive in limited areas in the northern part of the County.

Those receiving degrees at special summer commencement exercises at the University of Maine included Maxine B. Giberson of Danforth, BS in education; Vern L. McDonald Jr. of Smyrna Mills, BS in Education, and Hamilton S. Giberson of Danforth, master of education.

25 Years Ago - 1940
With more than 2,000 persons in attendance Thursday, the Monticello Fish and Game Club made a gala celebration of its ninth annual Field Day at Russell Rock on the Meduxnekeag stream.

Construction work on the Houlton Municipal Airport is now on a 24-hour day schedule. Howard Brackett of Houlton and Asa Roach of Merrill were among the candidates successful in passing the Maine State Bar Examinations given in Portland last week.

A canvass was made of all towns in the County this year and it has been decided that the picking wage for potatoes should average six cents per barrel with board, and eight cents per barrel without board. This wage will let the picker earn a good days wage and is fair to the grower.

Sometime after midnight Tuesday burglars entered the Ingraham Garage on Bangor street, broke open the safe and took between $200 and $300, and also broke into the office of Swift and Co. on Bangor street but did not succeed in opening the safe, although the lock was broken.

The discovery of a deposit of millions of tons of nearly pure lime in a swampy tract in the eastern section of Fort Fairfield will prove of inestimable value to the County's potato industry.

The Editor's Corner

Thursday was a big day in Patten. A steam log hauler, work-horse of the logging industry before being replaced by trucks some 30 years ago, was placed in the Lumberman's Museum, where it will be retained for future generations.

Officials of the Museum, together with interested townspeople, had spent more than a year getting the log hauler assembled to the point that it could be placed on display.

A good crowd was on hand Thursday afternoon when the big machine was backed into the new 60 x 60 foot open shed that had been constructed to hold heavy equipment. After the log hauler was in place, and photographs had been taken, the guests were treated to beanhole beans, brownbread and tea, a meal prepared as nearly as possible to one that might have been served in a logging camp.

Dr. Lore A. Rogers and Caleb Scribner, curators of the Lumberman's Museum and longtime residents of Patten, were beaming with pride over their latest acquisition. It represented fulfillment of a major project, and will serve as a major attraction at the Museum.

Mr. Scribner recalled the days when the log haulers were used, much the same as a steam locomotive hauling loads of logs as a trackless train. He could vividly remember watching and listening as the last train of the day would leave Patten, thunder down through the valley and back into the woods. "It was quite a sight," he recalled.

Last year the Lumberman's Museum in Patten was visited by more than 2,500 persons. It serves as a major tourist attraction for the Town, and is growing in size every day. Hardly a day goes by that some new relic of the old logging days is not brought in.

The Museum is well worth visiting, but we would suggest that you plan your visit so that you have enough time to really see the hundreds of exhibits.

Another Pay Raise

Washington, D.C.—Hints of inflation on the horizon must be true because members of Congress are proposing to vote themselves another pay increase. A bill to raise Congressional salaries for the second straight year has been approved by a House Committee, 20-1.

Whopping Pay Boost

It was only last year that a spending Congress decided to spend some of the taxpayers' money on Congressmen themselves. The legislators gave themselves a whopping one-third boost in pay, from $22,500 to $30,000 a year.

But the House Post Office and Civil Service Committee thinks Representatives and Senators are underpaid to $30,000. The exact amount of the increase is indefinite but it would range between $2,400 and $3,400 a year, over a two-year period, depending on private industry pay scales.

Because all House members and one-third of the Senators face an election in 1966, all Congressional pay hikes would be deferred until January 1, 1967. The theory behind this thinking is that opponents who charge incumbents with feathering their own nest will have less ammunition to fire if the higher pay is not yet effective.

Assuming the House bill becomes law, a Congressional pay level of $33,400 a year in 1967 would mean an increase of nearly 50 per cent in a two-year period. That is shaking the money tree with sensational success. The question is whether taxpayers, and voters, will stand for such generous self-treatment by their lawmakers.

It would never be proved without access to confidential tax returns but it seems safe to say that the average Senator or Representative never earned $30,000 a year before being elected to Congress. There are exceptions of course, particularly among those turning to politics late in life.

One exception among newcomers to Congress is Senator George Murphy (R., Calif.), the ex-Hollywood film star who made millions in the movies. It can hardly make very much difference to him whether Uncle Sam pays him $30,000 or $33,400 per year. Ditto the Kennedy brothers.

But out of the 535 members of Congress, there are few who earned big incomes before being sent to Washington. Some, like Senator Robert C. Byrd (D., W. Va.), were practically impoverished until elected to Congress. To them, $30,000 must seem to be reasonable compensation without another increase.

Of course, members of Congress do have large expenses, as they point out every time a raise in their pay is under consideration. They must maintain two homes, Washington living comes high, and only a part of their travel expenses between home and Washington are at government expense.

There is also the problem of getting re-elected, every two years for Representatives and every six years for Senators. Those who are entrenched in office seldom have to dig into their own pockets for political funds but those new on the job may lack affluent backers and be forced to pay part of their own campaign expenses.

Most members of Congress do not depend entirely on their government paycheck for their income. About half are lawyers who continue to practice their profession when it does not conflict with their official duties. Even an inactive partner in a law firm is a valuable asset if he writes "M. C." after his name.

Seniority Means $

Once a member of Congress attains some seniority and prominence, he can command four-figure fees for speeches or magazine articles. Often the most valuable member of a Senator or Representative's staff is a ghost, who gets paid by the government but who enriches his boss by writing speeches or articles.

In general, the rule is the higher the ranking in Congress, the better the opportunity for additional income. A committee chairman, with a considerable degree of control over an industry, may find numerous opportunities to earn $1,000 honorariums by speaking at conventions. Some uniformly decline such invitations but most do not.

Perhaps the rise in Congressional salaries may make more legislators less dependent upon outside income. If so, perhaps a case can be made for further increases in pay. If not, maybe it is time the voters objected strongly enough to put an end to escalation in the wages of lawmakers.

Poet's Corner

Thoughts
There is no other person in the world who could ever quite compare to a girl's dad. Dads are the people who make Christmas a little brighter, toothaches a little easier and the road of life a little less bumpy. Dads are more dependable than the tooth fairy, because no matter how old a girl may be she can always believe in him. He is always there to offer praise, consolation or a clean hanky. Dads are long on advice and short on cash. They are the only people in the world who can give you an accurate account of the depression years and the true value of a dollar bill while he's digging in his pocket to give you five.

Dads are wonderful, but they're seldom shown any appreciation or thanks for all their years of worry and care. Too many times it's said too late, "I wish I had done more for him." I read a little prayer once that I shall never forget: "God help me to show my family that I love them while they are still in my care, for tomorrow they may be in Your care." Anne Gentle

Thorne Has Retired After 33 Years As Rural Mail Carrier

By Marion Hulbert
ISLAND FALLS—George Thorne, familiarly known as "Pnut" retired July 31 after more than 33 years service on Route 1 out of the Island Falls Post Office. He is the first carrier to be retired from this office.

His route extended from Island Falls to Patten, including all the cross roads with 36.20 miles being traveled. He has worked under just two postmasters, Gus A. Young and currently Eleric Michaud. He has had Basil Campbell as his substitute all these years.

He has maintained very friendly relations with patrons and has always given help to them when needed. In these years of service he has seen children grow up, marry and settle down to have children of their own on his route.

His modes of travel have been varied, using a snowmobile the first several years. He has made his rounds by foot, and even on snowshoes during winter months.

Varied Experiences
His experiences have been varied and interesting, such as taking people hurt in accidents to the hospital, discovering a house on fire, getting help for sick people, being thrice bitten by dogs, once while his automobile was stuck in snowdrifts.

Greatest change he has noted is the improvements in roads as they are now "all year roads."

Mr. Thorne is a graduate of Island Falls High School, an avid sports fan, a veteran of World War I, and a member of the VFW Post 7529 in Island Falls. He received the Certificate of Merit and Selective Service Medal from the Congress of the United States in recognition of his services as re-employment committeeman during World War II.

He is a Communicant of St. Agnes Catholic Church and a member of the Holy Name Society.

Has One Son
He is married to the former Eoline Porter of Houlton and they have one son, Dr. John Thorne, who resides with his family in Schenectady, N.Y.

The Thornes expect to spend winters in Arizona where he has relatives and the summers at their home here and with their son and family in Schenectady.

He was honored Wednesday evening at a steak supper at Joe's Lodge at Pleasant Pond, given by the employees of the local post office at which time he was presented a gift from the group. Mrs. Thorne was presented a corsage.

Benefits Of SS Continue To Full Time Students

Students who receive social security benefits as the children of retired, disabled, or deceased workers can continue to get the payments after age 18 if they are attending school full-time, Robert J. DePorter, social security district manager announced this week.

Under this new provision, contained in the 1965 amendments to the social security law, students can continue to receive monthly benefits until they reach 22 or complete their education, whichever is earlier, he continued.

Students whose benefits were stopped when they reached 18 and who are continuing their education as full-time students will have to file a new application in order to have their payments started again. Benefit payments can be made retroactive to January 1965.

Young adults who take a full-time vocational course, as well as those going to high school or college full-time, are covered by this provision, he stated.

In addition to benefits during the school year, payment can continue during a vacation period of up to four continuous months, if the student will be returning to school afterwards.

Enthusiasm sets the pace, but it takes common sense to win in the long run.

MAIL CARRIER — George Thorne, who has retired after 33 years as a rural mail carrier in Island Falls, is shown with one of the early vehicles he used to complete his rounds. The snowmobile has runners in front, and lags in the rear for use during the winter.
